A HEALTHY TOWN.—Elko, according to the Post, has no death list and no sick list. Measles and diphtheria and croup, do not worry the children, nor rheumatism the grown up generation, and the doctors have a good easy time. The road to the cemetery shows no ruta, and a stone-cutter would starve to death if he depended upon mortuary chiseling. Cradles do not seem to be much in demand either. In fact, the prevailing complaint is—hash!

A DESERTED VILLAGE.—The Austin Revelle chronicles the desertion and decay of Dog Town, a little village seven or eight miles from Austin on the Eureka road. Even the buildings have been removed, and naught is left to mark the spot but a hole which was once a well, and a little debris. All is desolation. The glory of Dog Town has departed; its temples are destroyed; it has returned to the desert.

A circus now on the road in the Eastern States, announces itself as "the mightiest, most overwhelming, opposition annihilating, combined gorgeous and rival-crushing cluster of superb and bewilderingly perfect shows the entire world ever looked upon." It has the electric light, and that light is "glorious illuminator," and sheds "a halo of unspeakable glory."

The St. Louis Republican says it learns from what seems to be a reliable source, that there are at least 1,000 bona fide settlers on the reserved lands of the Indian Territory, building cabins, opening farms and preparing to stay.

ON THE SUMMIT OF MOUNT LOLA.

The United States Geodetic Survey party, under Prof. George Davidson, have at last located a station and observatory, on the top of Mt. Lola, six miles from the Independence Lake Hotel. Considerable difficulty has been experienced in getting the material and supplies needed by the party from here to the summit of the mountain. From Truckee to Independence Lake there is a passably good wagon road, but from the Lake to the foot of the mountain every article had to be packed on mules. From the base to the summit was the hardest task, as the mountain is covered with snow ranging from four to fifteen feet in depth, and too soft to bear the weight of a mule. From this point the packing was done by men, and after a great deal of labor and some hardship the station was established. A trail is now broken from the summit of the mountain to its base. The Professor and his assistants took possession of their new quarters on Monday, and for the next sixty or eighty days will remain on the summit of Mt. Lola, 9,200 feet above the sea level. —[Truckee Republican.

Colonel Von Bocke, the Prussian officer who attended Prince Frederick Charles to the marriage of his daughter to the Duke of Connaught, fought it is said for more than two years of our civil war, on the Confederate side. He got a bullet in his left leg which the doctors were unable to extract, and went over to London, where he wrote an account of his war experience for Blackwood.

THE LEGAL TENDER TEST CASE.

The legal tender test case, which is prosecuted by Mr. S. B. Chittenden on one side and General B. F. Butler on the other, is now before Judge Blatchford, in New York, who proposes to render a pro forma decision in favor of validity of the law. This proposition was submitted by Mr. William Allen, counsel for Mr. Chittenden, to Senator Edmunds, who is associate counsel in the case, who replied advising its acceptance, as it will place the case better on the calendar of the Supreme Court and make it easier to have it so advanced as to be heard at the October term. It is understood that Judge Blatchford desired to render a pro forma decision in favor of the validity of the law, out of a natural desire not to contravene or seem to upset the decision of the Supreme Court heretofore made on this question, but to send it directly and without any interference of his to the Supreme Court for its adjudication. It is understood that General Butler favors this disposition, as he desires to have the question decided by the Supreme Court as early as possible. Everything is in trim, therefore, to have the case brought before the October term of the Court, and the decision, which, whatever way it may turn, will be of very great importance, may be announced by January or February next.

The New York World had an editorial good humoredly criticising California under the new Constitution, ridiculing the Chronicle and Kearney and their quarrel, closing as follows:

If this melancholy picture is a true one, Sacramento is in a more evil plight than Sodom and Gomorrah. Kearney himself had said it, and it is greatly to his credit that he is the only man upon the Pacific slope who is not a bum, nor bondholder, nor blatherskite. He is the Lot—even the sand-lot as it were—of the Western City of the Plains. Inasmuch as we have it from an ancient associate and admirer of his, and a fervid advocate of the new Constitution, that not even Kearney is right, there seems to be no earthly reason why the celestial and avenging fires should be any longer withheld, and bold speculators will perhaps begin at once to sell San Francisco real estate and mortgages short.

Kentucky whisky, according to the Louisville Courier-Journal, owes its excellence to the superiority of the grain, the quality of the limestone water, and the slow process of distillation. Bourbon generally contains 70 per cent. corn, 15 rye, and 15 malt, while rye whisky is made of rye and malt. The ingredients are stirred into mash in a hugh tub, and then put into fermenting vessels. Yeast is used to hasten fermentation, except for sour-mash whisky. The process is not much unlike beer making. The liquid is next distilled twice, and becomes whisky in about a week from the start.

Prof. Cohn of Breslau has been lately making experiments with the electric light on the eyes of a number of persons for the purpose of testing its influence on visual perception and the sensation of color. He has found that letters spots and colors, are perceived at a much greater distance through the medium of electric light than by day or gas light. The sensation of yellow was increased sixfold compared to daylight, of red sixfold, and of green and blue about twofold. Eyes that could only with difficulty perceive and distinguish colors by daylight or gaslight were much aided by the electric light, and the visual perception was also much strengthened.

Etna's eruptions are subsiding, after threatening the cities and villages in its vicinity. Its previous eruptions on a large scale number about seventy, dating from the supposed period of the Trojan war to that of 1868. The eruptions of 1869 was very extensive, and caused widespread ruin. The lava stream flowed fifteen miles to the sea in twenty days going over the walls of Catania, which had been raised to a height of sixty feet to protect the city.

The trial of Tilden for defrauding the Government continues to drag its slow length along through the Courts. It has been on the calendar for nearly two years. It is disgraceful to the lawyers and the Courts—the New York "Commercial Advertiser" declares—that his case has not been closed up. If Tilden is guilty he ought to be convicted of the imputation.

E. J. Baldwin left for the East Monday, to be present at the races in which his horses, Mollie McCarty, Clara D. and others, are to take part. At last accounts they were doing finely, especially Mollie.

THE ROMANCE OF THE ISTHMUS.

[From the New York Herald.]

The public interest excited by the International Congress assembled in Paris to decide upon a route for a ship canal between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans recalls attention to the fact that this question of the shortest and most feasible route for the commerce of Europe with the extreme East played a mighty part four centuries ago in promoting not only the discovery of the two Americas but that of the greater portion of the African continent as well. Indeed, it was the school of hardy explorers formed in Portugal by Prince Henry, the navigator, in the second half of the fifteenth century, which trained Columbus for his destined work and thus inaugurated the great movement of conquest and colonization which renders forever memorable the beginning of the sixteenth century.

Inasmuch as the voyage of Columbus established as a fact the rotundity of earth and the consequent possibility of sailing, as he hoped to sail, from Spain westward to Grand Cathay, and the enchanted realms where "the gorgeous east, with richest hand, showers on her kings barbaric pearls and gold," it is usually taken for granted that Columbus was a man whose ideas in geography were more correct than those of his scientific contemporaries. It is common to depict his appearance before the "Geographical Congress" of Salamanca—the prototype of that of Paris to-day—in the attitude of demonstrating, globe in hand, to astonished and reluctant friars, the heretical doctrine of the rotundity of the earth. A noted picture in the Corcoran Gallery at Washington enforces this traditional view, and the incident is one that has been frequently cited as a conflict between science, typified by Columbus, and religious superstition, personified in the doctors of Salamanca.

The fact is quite the reverse of this picture. On the specific point at issue Columbus was wrong and the doctors of Salamanca were quite right. The question was not as to the rotundity of the earth. That was a doctrine familiar to all scholars from the days of the old Greek philosophers, and it had been lucidly advocated by Toscanelli and many other geographers of the fifteenth century, years before the earliest voyage of Columbus. The real question was as to the size of the earth. Columbus maintained until his death the opinion that the circumference of the earth was little more than half what it is now known to be, and expected to reach Grand Cathay by sailing two thousand miles westward from Cadiz. The doctors of Salamanca maintained that the distance was far greater, and their's a prior decision, though adverse to the views of Columbus, was entirely in conformity with the exact knowledge of the succeeding century.

When Columbus sailed from Palos in 1492 it was not the discovery of a new continent that he sought, but a shorter route to Eastern Asia—precisely the same problem now being discussed at the Paris Congress. As is well known, he believed until death that he had found the Indies, identified Cuba with Japan and various points of the Spanish Main with the countries described by Marco Polo. As, however, the regions in question did not correspond to previous expectations, it was the great object of Columbus to push westward to the real, recognizable Indies—the Indies of Vasco de Gama and of Portuguese commerce then carried on by the Cape of Good Hope. The conquerors of Mexico bore letters addressed to the Grand Mogul and to the heirs of Pester John. The second, third and fourth voyages of Columbus were all directed to the object of finding a route by sea to the Spice Islands and the realms of the Indian Peninsula, and in pursuance of this object he coasted in 1502 and 1503 along the northern shore of the long Isthmus of Darien or Panama as far as the Mosquito coast. He resided for some time in and received a dual title from the region of Veragua, northwest of Panama, within the present limits of Colombia. Only the mutiny of his crew prevented him from making a permanent settlement there.

The ideas of Columbus were shared by his companions and successors, and did not receive their deathblow until the voyage of Hernando de Magallanes in 1521 revealed the vast extent of the Pacific Ocean. The "South Sea," though discovered from a "peak in Darien" by Vasco Nunez de Balboa, in 1513, was then supposed to be a mere gulf of the Indian Ocean. When the original idea of the small size of the earth and the consequent nearness of the Spanish Main to the "Golden Ind" was proven false and reluctantly surrendered explorers like Cortes did not cease to search for a passage through the Western continent to the goal of their wishes in the extreme East. The Isthmus of Panama or Darien was naturally the centre of this search, but it was continued in more northern and more southern climes for a full century later. Frobenius navigated the Arctic Ocean and Hendrick Hudson the river and bay which bear his name with the same expectation. The settlers in Virginia in 1610 hoped that the Chickahominy River, now famous on other grounds, might prove the long sought waterway to the Indies. The "secret of the strait" was as fascinating a problem to the men of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries as the quest of Captain Kidd's money has been in our own time.

The first person who proposed a ship canal between the oceans seems to have been the celebrated conqueror of Mexico, Hernando Cortes. He acquired large estates in Oaxaca and on the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, with a view to the construction of such a canal, which he proposed to the Spanish Government in 1520. The first project of a Darien canal proper—between Chagres and the Rio Grande—was advocated in 1528 by the Governor of Panama, then the chief seat of Spanish authority for South America. The project was revived at intervals for nearly half a century, until Philip II., for political reasons not clearly apparent, but probably connected with his jealousy of British Commerce, forbade the subject to be again mooted. It consequently slumbered in Spanish archives for a couple of centuries more, but was sporadically taken up by navigators or adventurers of other nations.

The buccaneering exploits of Drake, Frobisher, Hawkins and their oppeers in the vigorous days of "Good Queen Bess" had the Isthmus of Panama for their centre, as did those of Morgan in the following century. The coasts of the Pacific from Cape Horn to Alta California were ravaged and spoiled by these bold mariners, who kept up a piratical station upon an island in the Bay of Panama, while other of their associates performed similar exploits in the Caribbean Sea and along the Spanish Main. The thrilling episodes of the capture of Porto Bello in 1665 and of Panama in 1671 by Sir Henry Morgan will not easily be forgotten by those who have read them in the graphic pages of Esquemeling's "Buccaneers of America." At the close of the seventeenth century William Paterson, one of the founders of the Bank of England, enacted that singular episode of a Scottish colony on the Isthmus which forms the subject of Eliot Warburton's historical romance, "Darien, or the Merchant Prince."

Instances might be indefinitely multiplied to show the fascination which that narrow neck of land, connecting two continents and dividing two oceans, has exerted for centuries upon the imagination of priests, warriors and merchants. It was at Panama that the conquest of Peru was planned in 1524 by the famous triumvirate consisting of Pizarro, Luque and Almagro. The same region was the scene of heroic labors by Jesuit missionaries, who frequently fell a sacrifice to the savage instincts of the rudest barbarians of either America. Who that read at the time the thrilling narrative of the exploration of the Isthmus by Lieutenant Isaac G. Strain in 1853 can have forgotten the incidents of that fearful struggle with fever, hunger and the dangers of the wilderness? Who that crossed the Isthmus in '49 or '50 on his route to El Dorado can fail to attain a vivid impression of experiences more quaint and curious than novelist ever predicted? Who that has been attacked by Isthmus brigands or suffered still more exasperating spoliation at the hands of the perennial revolutionists who infest that favored region but will concede that the American Isthmus "bears the palm alone," in respect to opportunities for the dime novelist.

Henceforth the Isthmus is to be invested with an interest of a higher and more permanent character. It will, doubtless, continue to afford abundant harvests of thrilling incident, but it is in the capacity of a great highway of the world's commerce that it will chiefly figure in works of reference. The annals of exploration are already long, but a page of honor will be reserved for the heroes who shall carry to completion the most fascinating enterprise which now invites the toil of human hands and brain.

SUCCESS IN THE STOCK MARKET.

Few people understand how large fortunes are amassed so rapidly in stock operations. Messrs. Lawrence & Co., Bankers, N. Y., have just published "two unerring rules for success" and full details, so that any one can operate. Mailed Free. Their new combination system of dealing in stocks is wonderfully profitable. By this method thousands of orders, in various sums are pooled into one immense capital, and co-operated as a mighty whole, thus securing to each shareholder all the advantages of vast capital and best skill. Profits divided every 30 days. $15 would make $75 profit, $100 would return $1,000, or 10 per cent. on the stock in the month, and so on, according to the market. A New York Fashion Editress and prominent newspaper correspondent, made over 475 per cent. profit on an investment, Oct. 5th, 1878. Many others are doing as well or better. Large or small amounts can be used with equal proportionate success by this system. All kinds of stocks and bonds wanted. Government bonds supplied. Apply to Lawrence & Co., Bankers, 57 Exchange Place, N. Y. City.

Mr. Montgomery, United States Consul at Geneva, writes that the project for holding an international regatta on the lake has been abandoned for this year.

PROBATE NOTICE.

IN THE SECOND JUDICIAL DISTRICT Court of the State of Nevada, in and for Washoe county.—In re matter of the petition of S. S. FITCH, an insolvent debtor. Pursuant to an order of the Honorable S. D. King Judge of the said District Court, notice is hereby given to all the creditors of said insolvent S. S. Fitch, to be and appear before the Honorable S. D. King aforesaid, at open Court, at the Court room of said Court, in Reno, Washoe county, State of Nevada, on 3d day of July, A. Meeting To-Night.

It is the duty of all good citizens to be present at the 4th of July meeting this evening, at Bowker's office. The Committee will report, and some new committees will have to be appointed.
Suggestions for the celebration will be in order.

There will be a meeting of Reno Chapter, No. 7, R. A. M., for work in the R. A., at 3 p. m. Friday, June 18th. Sojourning companions cordially invited to attend.

Mr. A. Strassburger, head of the well known house by that name, arrived in Reno yesterday, and will remain here a few weeks, with headquarters at position as Conductor and home comforts in Reno, to go off as agent of such a disreputable troop as the British Blondes.

In his letter to his wife he advises her to sell the house here, asks her to pay certain debts, and go and live with her father in the East.

Mrs. A. C. Hobart returned from below yesterday, and was greatly surprised to hear the rumors in circulation about her husband.

The Carson Tribune of last evening says: We certainly do not think that things are as black for Johnny as painted by the Journal. Hobart was the son of good nature, and none knew him but to like him. He was devotedly attached to his family, and never left a stone unturned to add to their happiness. That he has left his family and gone to Australia is true, but that he left without probably a good cause we do not believe. In a letter to a friend in Carson he said that he had good and sufficient reason for acting as he has, and hopes for the sake of his family that "THE REASON WILL NEVER BE KNOWN." Johnny has not "gone off to Australia with a fancy woman," as stated by the JOURNAL. He goes as advance agent for a theatrical company, and will probably never put in an appearance in this section again. It is an unfortunate occurrence all round, and the secret of its cause will never be known outside of those directly interested. Hobart has always enjoyed the implicit confidence of the road management, and when he sent in his resignation as conductor, his accounts were found correct to a fault.

The Virginia Chronicle of last evening says: The employees of the railroad company in this city, who have known Mr. Hobart for years, place no credence upon the foregoing story. The conductor of the train, which he used to run, states that he went to Australia as advance agent of the "British Blondes." His wife came up from San Francisco this morning, and is now in Carson.
She perhaps was with her husband up to the time of his sailing for Australia.

The Ball Last Night.

The ball last night, for the benefit of the Pavilion fund, was fairly attended, and the Society will profit by it, as many bought tickets, but with no intention of going. Varney's music was divine, and all who tripped the fantastic are loud in their praise.

Discharged.

Judge Bowker yesterday discharged the two Chinamen arrested for violating the town ordinance about shooting inside the town limits. The Chinese who were so eager to testify, didn't know anything. The heathens had settled the matter among themselves.

The Richings-Bernard troupe are billed to appear here on the 3d of August.

So says the Gazette of last night.
Some way yesterday distributed a lot of the old bills used here a year ago. The Gazette man tumbled.

T. F. Laycock has returned from Carson, where he has been painting the scenery for "Under the Gaslight."

The first shipment of Sierra Nevada bullion is daily expected. The amount will be about $30,000.

Judge Hawley, of the Supreme Court, was in town last evening.

Old Winnemucca, the Piute chief; is visiting the faithful hers.

The "sand-bag," as a weapon for the "stand-and-deliver fraternity" is rapidly coming into use. A blow from this weapon, delivered on the crown of the head, fells a man in stantly. This class of thieves do not care to kill their victims. Their pur-on published nearest the land described in the application, and he shall also post said notice in some conspicuous place in his office for the same period.

A compliance with the law will require the notice to be published weekly five times, because four weekly publications would not cover a period of thirty days.

The notice to be given by the Register must state that application to make final proof has been filed, the name of the applicant; the kind of entry, whether homestead or pre-emption; a description of the land, and the names and residents of the witnesses as stated in application. (See Form No. 2)

To save expense, the Register may embrace two or more cases in one publication, when it can be done consistently with the legal requirements of publication, in a newspaper published nearest the land.

When proof is filed that notice has been given in the manner and for the time required by said Act of Congress, the applicant will be entitled to make final proof as provided by the laws in force at the date of the approval of said Act. The proof that requisite notice has been given will be the certificate of the register that the notice of the application (a copy of which should be an-nexed to the certificate) was posted by him in a conspicuous place in his office for a period of thirty days; and the affidavit of the publisher or foreman of the newspaper that the notice (a copy of which notice must be annexed to the affidavit) was published in said newspaper once each week for five successive weeks.

A Quakeress, jealous of her husband, watched his movements, and actually one morning discovered the truant kissing and hugging the servant girl. Broadbrim was not long in discovering the face of his wife, as she peeped through the half-open door, and rising with all the coolness of a General, thus addressed her; "Betsey, thee had better quit peeping, or else thee will cause a disturbance in the family."

A lady's small gold neck chain was lost on Sunday evening, between the corner of 4th and Sierra streets and the M. E. Church. The finder will be rewarded by returning it to this office.

INSURANCE.—We desire to say to our insurance patrons and owners of property generally that we have secured the services of Mr. T. B. Camp, a professional insurance man who has had several years practical experience in the business and is thoroughly posted in all its details. He will give his entire time and attention to the business of insurance, thus securing care and skill in the writing of policies, so as to properly cover the risks, which is of great importance, as many sufferers by the late fire may recall, as it might have saved them hundreds of dollars in the adjustment of a loss. We shall issue policies and adjust losses at our office.
